POLICE COURT.—The business transacted in the Police Court yesterday, was unusually dull, no cases worthy of note having been disposed of.

IMPORTANT ORDINANCE TO BE ENFORCED .-The ordinance to prevent swine from running at large in the streets, will, we learn, be enforced after to-day. So many garbage-tubs have been upset by them that the enforcement of the law to the letter, has become necessary.

ARREST OF AN ALLEGED MARKET TRIEF,—An elderly female, whose name we will withhold until an investigation is had, was last night arrested and lodged in the Ham-mond-street Station-house, on a charge of stealing small articles in the market. She is wealthy, and until within two or three months, has been believed honest. She will have a hearing to-day. GYMNASTIC EXHIBITION AT TURNERS' HALL.

strengthen the muscle. Those who are anxious to introduce physical education into the public schools, would do well to be present.

COUNTY MATTERS.—The County Commissioners, at their regular session yesterday morning, passed the following orders: To Henry Roennich, for sand at jail, $8 50; to House of Refuge, for two months, $704 67; total $713 17. total $713 17.

The Auditor was instructed to advertise for bids for furnishing meat for the County Jail from the 7th of January. The advertisement to be published in the Enquirer, Commercial, Volksblatt and Volksfreund. The bids to be opened on the 31st of December.

OHIO POMOLOGICAL SOCIETY-Annual Meet ng to be Held in This City.—The Ohio Pomological Association will hold its next annual meeting at the rooms of the Cincinnati Horticultural Society, in this city, on the 16th and 17th of January next. The last year has been an unusually favorable one for the cultivation of apples, and it is the desire of the Society that a large collection, embracing every variety grown in the tion, embracing every variety grown in the central portions of the United States, be on exhibition. The object of the association is the promotion of fruit cultivation, and par-ticularly that of apples, and as an opportu-nity will be presented for a general exchange of views upon the whole subject of fruit, it is desirable that not only nurserymen, but armers, should be present and take part in the deliberations.

The marked improvement in fruit in this portion of the country, is to be attributed, in a great measure, to the influence of gath-erings of this kind, and a still further progress is easily attainable.

In no section of the United States is the fruit crop as certain, as in the belt lying between 38° and 42° of latitude. It is seldom killed during the winter, as it is, for diametrically opposite reasons, in the counties both North and South of it; in the former, from the great severity of the weather, and in the latter, because the mildness of the winter season produces a swelling of the buds, and renders the germ liable to destruction from the lightest frost.

to destruction from the lightest frost.

The meeting has been appointed at season of comparative leisure, and in the midst of a community of much zeal in horticultural pursuits; so that a large attendance and much interesting discussion may be confidently expected. A cordial invita-tion is extended to fruit-growers, nursery-men, amateurs, and all interested residents of other States, as well as Ohio, to meet and perticipate in the discussions. Packages of fruit for exhibition may be forwarded by express, care S. W. Haseltine & Co., Walnut-street, Cincinnati.

Successful Confidence Swindle—Sharpers Availing Themselves of the Disunion Excitement—A Virginiam Victimized,—A man named James Ruggles, who resides near Parkersburg, Virginia, was, on Sunday last, swindled out of $35—all the money he had—by two young men, who induced him to take a walk with them. The parties met him on Broadway, and learned that he was on the way to Laclede County, Missouri; they then told him that they were residents of that county, and were going to return there the next day and would be glad to render him any assistance in their power. Ruggles, who knew mothing of the West, readily consented to the proposal, after which one of the young men suggested that they go into a saloon in the vicinity and take a drink, to which the others agreed without hesitation. SUCCESSFUL CONFIDENCE SWINDLE-Sharpwhich the others agreed without hesitation. One of the young men then asked his com-panion if he had any Eastern or Northern money, stating at the same time that a tel-egraphic dispatch had been received that no bills from a free State would be taken in Missouri. This remark, thrown out casually, attracted the attention of the Virginian, who stated that all the money he had was on the State Bank of Ohio. He was immediately informed that he had better get it changed, as the people of Missouri were determined to retaliate upon the North for its deriliction of duty in not executing the Fugitive Slave-

This touched the pride of the Virginian, This touched the pride of the Virginian, and he at once lanched out upon the subject of politics, taking the pro-slavery side, the two young men agreeing with him in all things, until a complete sympathy was, to all appearances, established among them. After having apparently exhausted every political topic, Ruggles inquired where he could buy Missouri money, and was informed that at the banking houses five per cent, would be charged; but, at the same time, they suggested that they had a friend in business in the city, who would, for accommodation, make the exchange at par, but it would be recessary for him to remain away, as he would not be willing to accommodate a stranger, even upon their recommendation. One of the men then proposed to take the entire stock of Northern bank-medato a stranger, even upon their recommendation. One of the men then proposed to take the entire stock of Northern banknotes belonging to the party, while his comrade and their new friend should remain in the saloon, which was agreed to.

He then took some money from his comrade, and the Virginian gave him all he had; amounting to $35, without suspecting any design. After waiting some little time, the young man who remained behind said that it was about time their companion had returned, and stepped leisurely to the door as if to watch for him. While there he made some remark about a picture upon the wall, which at once attracted the attention of Ruggles, who ldoked at the painting for some time, when he turned around and found the man had gone. He waited for some time without entertaining any suspicion that he had been swindled; but when he went to the door and could see nothing of the two men, he made some inquiry of the barkeeper, who told him that he was acquainted with neither of them, but that there was no doubt but they were accomplished swindlers. keeper, who told him that he was acquainted with neither of them, but that there was no doubt but they were accomplished swindlers, and that he had been robbed of his money. Ruggles soon became satisfied of this, and after making sundry complaints succeeded in getting trusted for his passage money en board of a Parkersburg steambout which left the acxt day, and he is no doubt at home em this.

LAW REPORT.

Superior Court.

Street Bailboad Injunction Case.—
Shoenberger and others so. The Pendleton and Fifth-street Market-space Railroad Company. The petitioners allege that they have improved Broadway by the erection of fine dwellings, and in their petition set out the description of the several premises, and allege the entire value to be over $300,000—that they own the fee, subject to the easement of the public for travel—and proceed then to aver that the defendants, without authority, have undertaken to create an obstruction and nuisance on said street, and if permitted to proceed will injure the property and lessen its value, and hence they pray for an injunction.

The motion was argued by Mr. Lincoln for petitioners, and by Judge Matthews, contra. The argument has not closed.

THIRTY-SIXTH CONGRESS-1-SECOND SESSION.

CONCLUSION OF YESTERDAY'S SENATS PRO-CEEDINGS.]

WARRINGTON, December 10.

Mr. Dixon said: "We can't shut our eyes to the great truth that nothing less than the disruption of the Government is the great peril to which we are now exposed. It is enough for us to know that it would be not only a great event, but in its effects on the race of mankind, the great calamity of the age. The controversy on the subject of slavery has now reached a point where its honorable, rightful adjustment, consented to by the people of both sections, seems indispensable to the continuance of the Government in its prevent form. WARRINGTON, December 10.

pensible to the continuance of the Government in its present form.

"The election of Lincoln hastened the critical day. His defeat could only have postponed it. I don't intend to say that one section was more to blame than the other, whether both were equally at fault, or whether the blame was wholly on one side. Criminations and recriminations are now useless, nay, dangerous. If possible, the first thing done should be to restore the fraternal spirit which once existed. How shall this be done?

"By cheerfully and honestly assuring to fraternal apprit which once existed. How shall this be done?

"By cheerfully and honestly assuring to every section its just constitutional rights—no section ought to ask more—none ought to offer less. As to what are these constitutional rights, that is a subject to be considered in a spirit of confidence, mutual good will and devotion to the Union, for the preservation of which my constituents are ready to make any sacrifice any reasonable man asks or an honorable man can grant consistently with principle. In this spirit I shall meet this great question, and in doing so shall be sustained by an immense majority of my constituents.

"If time shall show that I am wrong in this belief, I shall instantly cease to represent them here. The people under God must save this nation, if it is to be saved. The politicians can not do it. What I may be willing to do, or the Senate be willing to do, will avail nothing, unless sustained by the intelligence and confidence of the people.

"There is a class of men North, perhaps South, small in number and influence, who assume that the present controversy is a conflict of two civilizations, and freedom or slavery must perish. The great body of those I represent do not thus believe. We believe there is no conflict of systems of labor in different States, incompatible with believe there is no conflict of systems of la-bor in different States, incompatible with the peaceful existence of our Union.

"We believe that the slaveholding and non-slaveholding States may still revolve in harmonious spheres; that if the question of slavery destroys the Union, it will be because the statesmen of the day are incompetent to the task." After further debate by Brown, Pugh, Hale and others, the Senate adjourned.

WASHINGTON, December 11. SENATE—The House Bill to provide for the payment of outstanding Treasury-notes and authorize a loan, &c., was taken up. After some remarks by Mr. Rice against, and Mr. Cameron in favor, it was, on motion of Mr. Rice, referred to the Finance Com-mittee. mittee.

The resolution in relation to that portion of the President's Message in reference to of the President's Message in reference to secession, was taken up.

Mr. Hale offered a resolution that the Committee on Military Affairs be instructed to inquire whether the expenses of that branch of the public service can not be reduced without detriment to the safety, and that if they can, they be further instructed to report to what extent and what particular branch, or branches, can be dispensed with or reduced. The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Bigler tuen took the floor, having yielded it yesterday. He said he would go with the Senator from Illinois, with men of every party who will devote themselves to the great work of rescuing the country from danger. "Mr. President, for weal or woe, I am a Union man; I am for the Union as made by our fathers; I am for the Constitution and 'the Union." He concluded by saying that in Pennsylvania and New York there were more voters than in all the States there were more voters than in all the States theatening secession. The Republican party has gained its last victory; let us remain together.

Mr. Iverson said the South does not fear the operation of the Personal liberty Bills, Frontive aloya Laws for 15 they were all. Fugitive-slave Laws, &c. If they were all as been said that the amendments will be made so that a State may be sued for damages to the amount of the value for slaves efused to be given up. Such a law is worthess. You can not sue a State, if, in its sovereign capacity the case can not be brought

The vote of the late Presidential contest shows the public sentiment of the North. All the Douglas non-intervention, squatter-sovereignty party in the North can not avail. [Laughter.] Under Black Republicanism, the border slave States become a burden. If the South is left to herself, the slave population will increase in thirty years from 4,500,000 to 30,000,000. The slave popula-tion will predominate over the white. If tion will predominate over the white. If the North prevail, emancipation will eventually take place in the Government.

Mr. Pugh said, "Do you hope to continue the Union from the extraordinary speech

My right arm shall go from its socket before
I will force them to accept it."
Mr. Iverson—I refer you to my speech of February 23, last year, when I was in the chair. Did you not say "Yes" when I referred to the Burns Fugitive-slave Case?"
Mr. Pugh—"That is the only case."
Mr. Iverson read from the Globe to prove that Mr. Pugh did not adhere now to what he had stated previously to this session.
Mr. Pugh—"Let me read the rest.

A government that won't do it I would spit upon. I would sooner have the despotism of Louis Napoleon and the Prince of Wales over me than a government that would not command respect."

Mr. Douglas—"No law can be said to be left unexecuted unless it has been brought before a court of some sort."

Mr. Green—"I do not uphold the senti-HOUSE—Mr. Cobb, of Alabama, did not rise to make a speech, but to express an anxious desire that the Se "ect Committee should commence their deliber ations in some tangible form. His hope w. He hoped the Hoase would stop this debate and do something else, if possible, to produce harmony among the people.

why he should serve on the Committee. He might be blamed and censured, but, in acting where his conscience approved, he defied the opinion of the world. He stood not here as the representative of his own preferences, but for the interests of his constituents. He regretted that the resolution under which the Committee was raised, came from a distinguished son of Virginia.

the Committee was raised, came from a dis-tinguished son of Virginia.

He had entertained an opinion that the Southern members should withdraw and leave the Republicans to submit a report for consideration; but this could not be done. The Constitution was sufficient for the pro-tection of Southern rights, if executed in letter and spirit. If our Government rests for its construction on public opinion, he for its construction on public opinion, he would have no hope from that source, nor that it could be preserved by compromise or the use of the sword. The Republicans have destroyed the only bond which can bind the Union. The subject-matter referred to this committee did not belong to this House. It grew out of principles and systems in the Northern States, directly at war with the safety and material interests of the South. If there were any action at all it should

If there were any action at all it should originate with the States.

The House voted, and refused to excuse Mr. Hawkins. Yeas 95; nays 101.

Mr. Hawkins said, lest silence would be construed into consent to serve on the committee, he wished to say, with all deference and good feeling for those who voted against his request, that he would not serve.

Mr. Boyce sked to be excused from service on the committee.

Mr. Boyce asked to be excused from service on the committee.
Mr. Smith, of Virginia, objected.
Mr. Burnett thought the refusal to excuse gentlemen was extraordinary, after they have made up their minds upon mature reflection, and in justice to their respective States, that they can not serve. He was satisfied that the committee did not express the rentiments of the various sections. The Representatives of South Carolina will remain here only a few days longer, why then main here only a few days longer, why then main here only a lew days longer, why then refuse to excuse?

Mr. Boyce—"Is force the mode and manner of instituting measures with a view to restore peace and good feeling in the country?"

Mr. Smith replied that he would not force. He was one of those who refused to excuse Mr. Hawkins, and after the lecture of Mr. Burnett he felt it his duty to cate his vote. Present affairs are big with the affairs of the Republic, and discussion on the question was not likely to do any good. Mr. Morrill asked to be excused from serving on the Committee, because of other duties which fully employed his time.

After debate, Mr. Corwin offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing the Select Committee to employ a clerk at $4 per day, and that the committee have leave to sit during the sessions of the House, until they shall report or be otherwise discharged. they shall report or be otherwise discharged.

Mr. Sherman, from the Committee on Ways and Means, reported the Diplomatic and Consular Appropriation Bill, and a bill making appropriations for the support of the Indian Department. He also introduced a Indian Department. He also introduced a resolution, which was adopted, instructing the Committee on Indian Affairs to inquire and report whether any Superintendent of Indian Affairs or Indian Agents can be dispensed with without public detriment.

Mr. Sherman presented the petition of Thaddeus Hyatt, asking for relief for the people of Kansas.
